Mid 19th Century

This farm complex has a brick house which would appear to date from the mid 19th century. The barn, a large frame structure burned in 1975. The buildings provide an example of a typical 19th century farmstead and would seem to reflect Germanic building traditions which are very prevalent in the area.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This farmstead is located on the east side of Day Road, just east of U. S. Route 40, southeast of Hagerstown in Washington County, Maryland. The house is situated on an area of level ground and faces southwest. It is a two story, four bay brick dwelling resting on low fieldstone foundations. A two story, two bay wing which appears contemporary with the main section extends to the rear. Bricks forming the walls are laid in Flemish bond at the front elevation while common bonding with five courses of stretchers between header rows is utilized in the other walls. Flat arches of brick are present above the openings.

Windows and doors are aligned with each other in the walls. They have narrow rounded frames. Nine over six light windows are used at both the first and second stories. A small single pane sash window has been added at the second story of the northwest wall of the wing. Pairs of three panel shutters are used at the first story of the front elevation while at the second story shutters with movable louvers are present. One pair of two panel shutters is also used. The main entrance is located in the second bay from the northwest corner of the wing. The door has six low relief panels and is hung beneath a small transom. A modern shed roofed porch extends across the front elevation and a partially enclosed double porch spans the southeast wall of the wing.

Brick chimneys are located inside the gable end walls of the front part of the house. Standing seam sheet metal forms the roof of the front section while metal shingles were used at the back part.

The main floor of the front section is divided into two rooms, each with a fireplace. The larger or northwest room is entered by the front door and has the main stair in its north corner. The house has been renovated recently.

A large frame bank barn which burned in 1975 stood to the east of the house. The property contains 96.4 acres.
